The Old Age of Women
Who Made the Revolution?
Whence Shall Money Come?

By Arthur Brisbane

HODGE, Cal. Feb. 15.—Like the rest of the world, this coast has really "unusual" weather. California's flying governor, Rolph, who never leaves when he can fly, was forced down at Baker's Field Tuesday on his way from San Francisco to Los Angeles, and finished the journey, following behind a snow plow, over the high Cajon Pass that leads down to the orange groves.

This writer, coming eastward through that pass Tuesday night, appreciated the 150 horsepower of a 12-cylinder Lincoln car turning out through the four feet high, giving way to weaker cars, and climbing through a snow covered gully, for several miles, over improvised bridges, to avoid a "slide" on the main road.

Andrew Macreary, son of the late Magistrate Macreary of New York, who had just finished a four-day run across the continent, drove the 12-cylinder car, and with his bumper pushed one of the smaller cars up the worst hill on the detour.

Immigrant easterners were amazed to learn that they could not buy a pair of rubbers in San Bernardino, a city of 60,000. Only one pair of non-skid chains was left in the city. Such things are curious here. Curious also are the exhortations and warnings that denigrate the cars of automobilists in these regions. One touring car, with no top, helplessly stalled in the snow, bore the disconcerted legend, "Where Will You Spend Eternity?" Another, with a trailer behind, unable to budge, announced, "Dear Will, I am sorry for those in a hurry, one man with white whiskers had written on the rear of his topless car, "Speed on brother, but don't aim full yet."

Many hangover owners erect billboards with Bible quotations intended to make you reform. You see also "Large fresh eggs, 15 a dozen, four brothers for 50¢." That sign would interest eastern housekeepers.

A young author says "women live too long." Some women unhappily do live too long, when they outlive the gratitude of children, to get rid of a debt that never can be paid. But the later years OUGHT to be the best in a woman's life, the happiest and, apart from creating the race, the most useful.

Life insurance experts tell you that a woman's life probabilities are better than a man's after the child-bearing period. Providence would not have given more of old age to woman than to man, if these last years had not been intended for useful happiness.

Women past middle age find happiness in guiding and encouraging those that are young. In setting a good example, in settling the strange vanity of man, whose child outlives his years.

What man will deny that there are 100 concealed old women for one concealed old woman?

Cutting down immigration even more severely is urged in 35,000 copies. Mrs. F. F. Webster, head of the Daughters of the American Revolution, says: "Our children are young, and leaders with children of those who are bringing a bad influence into this country."

A terrible thought, but when came the FATHERS of the American Revolution? Were they Red Indians, or were they the immigrants from Europe?

Secretary Mills, Mr. Mellon's able successor, is overwhelmed with tax suggestions from Congressmen and others. The problem is this:

From whose pocket shall Uncle Sam take money that he must have?

Each suggestion annoys someone. Breadstuffs some interest, business, or industry. To tax automobiles means less money in an industry that employs millions. A gasoline tax means more trouble for those that have enough. A tax on moving pictures would be ruinous to an industry when it is down.

The best tax, wisest and fairest, would be a tax on the small, as small as it can be felt by anyone, but highly productive. This would come from the usual taxes on the individual and corporation incomes. These incomes cannot be added with the income load, without danger of making the depression infinitely worse.

Retail trade and business generally oppose the tax which is natural, but what would a tax on the small mean? Prof. Seligman, learned economist, says a tax on light beer would mean a tax on the poor, and a tax on arm and army would mean a tax on the rich. But prohibitionists will not allow that, for the present.

WEATHER

Fair and colder tonight; Friday partly cloudy with rising temperatures; fresh north wind tonight, becoming southerly on Saturday.

Minimum temperature tonight near 35.

CHINESE ORDER TO CHINA: HELLO EVERYBODY!

Must Retire and Cease Defense by Saturday, Jap Order

Shanghai, Feb. 18 (INS)—HELLO EVERYBODY! Peace overtures have failed.

Japan has delivered her ultimatum.

Shanghai's war will resume at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon unless:

—Chinese demand forces have withdrawn a distance of twenty kilometers north, east, and west of the International Settlement and the French concession.

—The Chinese agree to a permanent raising of the Whangpoo forts near Shanghai and the Lion Fort at Nanking.

These are the developments and conditions officially reported tonight to Admiral Montgomerie M. Taylor, commander of United States forces in Shanghai.

NEVER CRY CHINESE

Shanghai's Chinese mayor, Wu Te-Chen, who received the ultimatum from the hands of the chief of staff of the Japanese ninth division, threw his hands in the air upon receipt of it and exclaimed:

"Never, never. These demands are more infamous than Japan's attempted robbery at Versailles."

"The Chinese army will resist to the last man. We will fight her on our soil amongst the sacred graves of our ancestors."

It was at 3:45 p. m. that Mayor Wu received the ultimatum. I was in his presence, a moment later the same as handing a man a pistol and pointing it at him to commit suicide.

"SAME AS SUICIDE"

"Japan orders China to remove its army from our greatest commercial city and destroy the defense of the capital of our nation," Mayor Wu declared. "It is the same as handing a man a pistol and pointing it at him to commit suicide."

"Imagine a foreign invader demanding withdrawal of the American army and navy from the city of New York harbor."

"Imagine an enemy in your midst and you to reduce the defense of a national Capitol at Washington."

"Would America accept such terms and obey such outrageous commands?" OF COURSE NOT, retorted the mayor.

JACK PICKFORD'S THIRD WIFE HEADS FOR COURT

THEIR ROMANCE ALL OVER

JACK PICKFORD MARY MULHERN

Jack Pickford, brother of Mary, has admitted that his wife of two years, the former Mary Mulhern, has separated from him and is planning court action, probably for divorce. It was Pickford's third marriage, his first wife, Olive Thomas, having died in Paris, and his second, Marilyn Miller, having secured a divorce.

SEEKS DIVORCE AFTER 2-YEAR ROMANCE

Her 'Vacation in New York' Is Revealed as Separation From Hubby

Hollywood, Feb. 13.—When Jack Pickford spent Thanksgiving and Christmas alone and with a smile said that his wife was only away on a vacation, his friends tried to believe him. Then, when the holidays passed and another six weeks and still Mrs. Jack Pickford, the former Mary Mulhern, remained in New York visiting her parents it was inevitable that the truth must be told.

DIVORCE LIKELY
Pretty Mary Mulhern, whose Irish beauty captivated Jack Pickford, had gone to New York to stay, today Jack admitted there would be a legal separation and most likely a divorce. He was reluctant even to discuss the subject.

But when I have known him from the time he tagged along with Mary Pickford and was introduced as her small brother. I have always felt that Jack might have become one of the great actors if he hadn't been born Mary Pickford's brother. He has such an abundance of talent and did such remarkable work in "Sensational" and other. But being the brother of one of the world's most famous women was Jack an inferiority complex. He has always felt people were being nice to him because of the tremendous popularity of his sister.

PRAISES HIS WIFE
Today he had somewhat the same feeling.

"Please say Mary Mulhern is an awfully nice girl and that I am sorry we couldn't make a go of our marriage. That is, if you feel you must say anything. He had begged me previously not to write anything about this. When I explained several of his friends had told me of the impending separation and that the story was known in New York he was relieved.

This is Jack's third marriage. He and Olive Thomas, his first wife, were supremely happy. It happened to be in Paris when she died.

Living Olive was a terrific love. The two of them had meant so much to each other. Then Jack married Marilyn Miller, the star of New York, and this marriage ended in divorce a few years later.

Jack married Mary Mulhern in 1930. They lived together just a little over a year. She went East last October and it was a terrific shock to him. She said she was in Hollywood and that she missed her parents and her friends in New York.

There is little doubt that Jack tried hard to make her happy, but somehow the marriage just didn't work out.

BOY KILLED, GIRL HURT BY AUTO

Worcester, Feb. 13.—Hector Lawrence, 5, of 71 Lyman st., was killed, and Viola LaRoque, 3, of 73 Lyman st., was probably fatally injured, when struck by an auto driven by Arthur W. Warren, Central st., Auburn, while on their way to kindergarten today.

Warren told police the children stepped from behind a trolley car going in the opposite direction. Police say the girl victim was carried 51 feet on the auto bumper.

DYNAMITE IN AN EMPTY HOUSE

Rehoboth, Feb. 8.—Eight cases of dynamite, enough to blow up a good-sized locality, furnished police a mystery today after they found it in a deserted house here.

It was stored in a second floor room of a house in Hornblow rd., and showed evidence of recent burial, police said.

Police questioned the woman owner of the house but obtained no knowledge of the cache.

FOREIGN MAIL RATE UP CENT

Postal rates on letters and postcards will be increased to all foreign countries on April 1, it was announced today by the Postoffice Department.

On and after that date, the letter rate will be 3 cents an ounce instead of 2 cents. Postcards will be 2 cents, instead.

These rates have been in effect for Canadian and Newfoundland mail since last September and for Great Britain and her possessions since last November.

It is expected that under the new rates, $3,500,000 annually will be added to postal revenues.

ARMED TRIO GET $185 IN STORE

Three gunmen fled with loot from a fruit store and market at 302 East Eighth st., South Boston, last night. While one walked in a large sedan, the other two entered the store and forced the proprietor, George Petralis, 43, against his better will at the point of a revolver.

While one of the men took $185 from the cash register, the other removed $100 from Petralis' pocket.

4 GIRLS FREED

Four girls found in the apartment of Harry Morgan, confessed bandit, in Belvidere st., Back Bay, last week, were found not guilty today in municipal court on charges of being idle and disorderly.

They were Agnes McArdle, Josephine Curran, Rita Harney and Mary F. Quinn, all of South Boston and all under 21.

Judge Murray, in finding the girls not guilty, said:

"Let this sad experience be a lesson to you. In the future be more careful in picking your boy friends. You might find well to have your parents into your confidence. Their experience in life will help you and will help you from falling into a den such as that in which you were found."

Ely, Winant Fight Rail Merger Plan

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Two New England governors appeared today before Chairman Porter of the Interstate Commerce Commission and opposed the four-way eastern trunk line railroad consolidation plan.

Governors Ely of Massachusetts and Winant of New Hampshire testified the plan as it stands would be deleterious to New England. Their objection was to the plan to allocate four bridge lines at the Hudson river gateway to the eastern trunk lines instead of to New England roads.

Masie, is back in New York from Hawaii to visit her father who has been seriously ill many weeks. "Mother will be all right," she said, with a calm assurance that showed she had no doubt but that her mother would be acquitted. (International Newsphoto photo.)

COUNTY BILLS SEES ACQUITTAL CURB FAVORED FOR MOTHER

Scores of favorable replies are being received by City Clerk Victor C. Kirmes, of Melrose, to the petition sent to all Middlesex County cities and towns seeking a two-thirds approval of the cities and towns before the county may appropriate sums for major improvements.

The petition grew out of the strong protest over assessments for the $2,250,000 tuberculosis hospital at Waltham. All cities and towns have been requested to approve and return the petition that they may be presented to the Legislature.

Special legislation has already grown out of the protest by the county is allowed to assume payments for communities, thus spreading the payments over a period of years. Assessment in many communities this year would have meant as much as $3 difference in tax rates.

The legislation which Melrose would make mandatory for a two-thirds approval of cities and towns whose expense of $25,000 or over is created.

BLOOD OF MAD TRAPPER WRITES COUNTIES' AXIOM

'GET THEIR MAN' AFTER LONG PURSUIT

Arctic Chase of Two Months Ends at a Cost of Two Dead and One Dying

Aklavik, Northwest Territory, Feb. 13 (AP)—In fresh fallen snow of the Rat River country, a week's hard maul from where the majestic Mackenzie pours into Beaufort Sea, the blood of Albert Johnson has written—as the blood of hunted men has written before—the familiar, inevitable axiom:

"The Canadian Mounted Police always get their man."

The mad trapper of Rat River died yesterday, rifle in hand and a blooded finger on the trigger which had sent death to one Mountie and dangerous wounds to another.

As he fell in snow fresh laid by blizzard that stung the faces of the police who had cornered him, he sent two bullets whining toward his attackers, dropping Staff Sergeant E. P. Harvey.

HAD BOMBS READY
Above him dangled a plane. In it were bombs which Pilot W. R. (Woop) May was ready to drop in case the fire of the ground force failed. With May's Johnson dead, he landed, picked up the dead trapper's severed head and hid it here. Harvey is critically wounded, a bullet through the knee and another in the chest.

Once before in the two-month pursuit of the mad trapper, the same pilot had flown a Mountie home. The other time it was Constable E. Miller, and Miller was dead.

During the eight weeks Johnson languished at the law of the northland, the trapper and trappers Indians called him mad. They said he was crazy; crazy like a fox. First they went boldly to his hut in the cabin. Indians had complained that someone had been robbing their traps. The trail of the thief led to Johnson's place.

BOMBS MUSH
The officers knocked at the door. The trapper opened the door. Constable A. W. King led. R. W. McDowd followed. The wounded officer on a dog sled and mushed back to miles through a blizzard to Aklavik in the remarkable time of 10 hours.

It saved the wounded man's life.

Other police in greater numbers went to the mad trapper's cabin. Bullets warned them away, but they went boldly to his hut in the cabin roof. Johnson's mad laugh echoed in them as they went. Bullets from his gun kept them at a distance.

The Mounties sought to starve him out; but one day the cabin was empty. He had thrown away his life. He had thrown away his life.

Once he was caught up with him. He had thrown away his life. He had thrown away his life.

Yesterday the trail of the mad trapper, plain as print in fresh fall snow, was zig-zagged. It meant he was through. His strength, great enough to kill a man, was through.

Harvey, forgetting ahead ahead of the posse, came upon him first. Johnson was weak; but there still was strength to life a gun, still power to press a trigger, still that uncanny aim that could send a bullet to a target at half a mile.

Harvey tumbled to get his own weapon from the toboggan to which it was strapped. Too late. Two bullets tore into his body.

TWO BRYANS GO TO FOOTLIGHTS

New York, Feb. 13 (US)—Broadway's enchanting footlights have cast their spell over two grandchildren of William Jennings Bryan and if they have their way they'll be playing opposite each other on the stage.

Helen Bryan has been studying for two years at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts here and tomorrow she will make her first public appearance as leading lady in an amateur performance of "Berkeley Square."

Her cousin, John Bryan, who dropped the marriage name of his mother, Congressman William Jennings Bryan Owen of Florida, has already played two seasons in New York with the Fritz Leder dramatic company, although he is only 22 years old. And he is as dashing handsome as Helen is pretty.

Sealed Verdict in Surgery Death Case

Brooklyn, Feb. 13.—A jury disagreement was reported today in a sealed verdict to Judge Collins in Superior Court on the case of Walter D. Shurtliff of Plymouth, charged with illegal surgery.

It was the second trial of Dr. Shurtliff. He was charged with the death of Mrs. Evelyn Anstetter, 32, of Plymouth.

He has been in a sanatorium since December 1, recovering from pleurisy. He is shown with Miss Marian Noble, his sweetheart. The little gridiron star now weighs 139½ pounds and says he feels "fit to lick Jack Dempsey." He will not be permitted to engage in any sports from now on. (International Newsphoto photo.)

RADIO GIRL TOOK AGED NUN DIES MATE, SAYS WIFE IN SCHOOL FIRE

Salem, Feb. 13.—Love with her radio operator husband was long wave indeed, Mrs. Margaret E. Sloane, 25, of Peabody, testified today in private court seeking to divorce Bernard P. Sloane for desertion.

It wasn't so bad, she said, when he worked on a Boston-New York and back, because he would be home every other night. But he shifted to a boat that allowed him to be home only every three to six months.

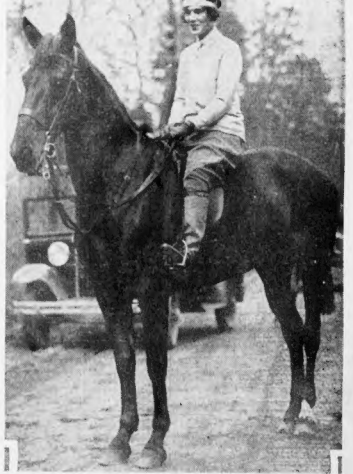

After the second another hookup, the wife testified—but she didn't know until she received a letter that his new affiliation was a girl. A radio girl at that, employed in New York. His letter said, according to her testimony:

"By this time you must know that my heart is elsewhere. Of course you will condemn the girl and I but the law will provide for you and the children. Can't I marry that girl so that I will not be forced to live in disgrace?"

LID OF EXPOSE IN HOAX GIRL MYSTERY

joined by him and the victim's aunt, Mrs. A. Edward Carroll of Brookline, after it had appeared exclusively in the Boston Evening American.

Miss Cook had told him that sleeping powder caused her illness and he never attached any "particular importance" to it, Arnold told Freeman. He apparently was unaware that his fiancée had been addicted to the use of a sedative ever considerable period, an opinion expressed by Dr. Edward Carroll, one of her two uncles here, in Framingham, the N. S. Chinese Police, from "somewhere west of Suva," with tea and spiders and rubber—and the closely guarded hoax message suspected to have led Miss Cook to take her life while on board—picked up a little speed off the Massachusetts coast and was due off Boston Light tonight.

INQUEST IS HELD UP

The Gibraltar inquest into the Italian-born beauty's death was apparently suspended in midair, awaiting return of the message.

The State Department at Washington is expected to forward to Arnold the official report of the post-mortem chemical analysis which disclosed the traces of quinaldine, a German narcotic.

Inquiries by the British consulate here, London, U. S. A., and of the Furness-Willey Line, steamship operators, were making time so far as any public announcement was concerned, until the arrival of the Chinese Prince, although Capt. Henry Thorne of the passenger-carrying freighter is known to have been in communication by wireless with certain persons here. That Miss Cook was for a time employed in a State of business office was made known by Elizabeth M. Joyce of 161 Brook rd., Milton, an employee of the same company.

A friend of the hoax victim for three years, Miss Joyce knew her as "a perfectly healthy, normal, cheerful girl, interested in life and tremendously interested in her plans to marry Mr. Arnold."

Miss Joyce received one of the last letters written by the Brookline girl. In an interview with the Boston Evening American, she contradicted previous reports that Miss Cook was moody and unhappy in Europe with her motherly sister.

"My last letter from Elizabeth was written in Weidenburg, Germany, under date of Jan. 25," she said. "I was the type any girl would wish to emulate. It was a light-hearted letter in this case, although she contradicted some speculative phrases."

LETTER TO ARNOLD, TOO

Elizabeth said she was enjoying her trip immensely and feeling fine, she said she was with her mother and sister, Louise, in Weidenburg, where she was under treatment for her eyes. She said she was going to leave for Munich and friends and remarks she would be seeing her soon.

The letter expressed only a cheerful attitude. Mr. Arnold, her fiancé, received one a few days later, and as I understand it these were the last two received by any friends in this country.

"Because of developments in the case I thought it best to turn the letter over to Elizabeth's aunt, Mrs. Carroll."

"I had known Elizabeth for three years and I always considered her a girl of the highest reputation. She was sent under treatment in Germany. She was a perfectly healthy girl and always happy. I never saw her depressed or moody as some of the newspaper reports stated."

DOUBTS DRUG ADDICTION

"I also doubt very much if she used anything in the nature of drugs at any time while I knew her."

"She went abroad early in December to meet her mother and sister and told me she would be back the first week in February. Therefore I was not surprised to receive a letter she was going to start soon."

"I was shocked to learn of her death and the mystery which has developed since. It would be interesting to know whether that hoax message was sent from a European wireless station or from America."

"Whoever sent that message was sufficiently familiar with the girl to know her sweetheart's name. Therefore it could not have been a stranger and hardly a casual acquaintance."

WAS MUCH IN LOVE

"I know Elizabeth planned to marry Mr. Arnold just as soon as she came back. She was very much in love with him. She told me so many times. She did not mention any of her wedding plans in her last letter to me, however."

"She went abroad in May to most her mother and stayed a few months. Her mother travels a lot and likes to be abroad. I feel sure that Elizabeth did not have any love affair abroad, nor did she have any other romance in this country so far as I was aware.

"I know of no other man in Boston in whom she was interested."

"Elizabeth was employed for four months at—E. C. Co., where I work and we saw each other a great deal in that time. She had clerical duties and was employed there only temporarily. She said she liked the work very much. She never spoke to me about her means but I gathered that her mother must have been well off."

FLOGGING OF 3 BOYS STIRS EDUCATORS

New York, Feb. 14 (U.S.)—The public flogging administered to three boys in a Woodbury, N. J., courtroom for creating a disturbance in a motion picture theater was denounced today by educators as "harmful to everybody concerned."

The whipping was ordered by police recorder Frank L. Johnson, who appeared as a witness in the case against the three boys, 16, Norman Redfield, 15, and William Elms, 12, it was believed.

"When an act of this kind comes from someone of the importance, such as a judge, it makes everyone else who is a member of the law think there is nothing better to offer in the way of just punishment," said Mrs. Sidney M. Gussenberg, director of the Child Study Association of America.

"Whipping is the natural reaction of an angry person, but one expects more constructive pronouncements from judges as from educators."

Dr. Patty Hill of teachers college pointed out that while she did not approve of corporal punishment, the flogging might be more humane than imprisonment, which was a choice between the two.

Two of the mothers of the boys were in court when a 250-pound police sergeant strapped them. The other mother, Mrs. George Redfield, said later she did not approve of the punishment.

"If there is any whipping needed, I'm perfectly capable of doing it myself," she remarked.

"Her husband, a Pullman conductor, will 'see about this' when he gets home from St. Louis, she asserted. His brother, Ernest Redfield, an attorney, called it "outrageous."

Recorder Johnson, meantime, announced he had had a change of heart and now is sorry he passed the sentence.

"It worked adversely," he said. "Instead of showing the boys the error of their ways, it has made them heroes in the eyes of the public."

VETS GIVE GAVEL TO ROOSEVELT

A delegation of the Veterans of Foreign Wars today presented James Roosevelt with a gavel and check made from the original members of the U. S. S. Constitution.

This gift is intended for young Roosevelt's father, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, as a token of the veterans' support of his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The veterans were represented by Alfred C. Hendrickson, V. D. veteran, Lieut. Henry J. Dixon, U. S. N., and by Corporal John A. Butley, late 14th Engineers.

It was stated by the delegation that the Veterans of Foreign Wars are soon to start a members organization to back Gov. Roosevelt through the coming campaign.

SIR LINDSAY OUT OF BIG RACE

London, Feb. 13 (AP)—Jack Anthony, trainer for John Hay (Jock) Whitney, said today the injury sustained by Sir Lindsay, would prevent the running of the American-owned horse in that race, but it was too early to tell whether the horse would race again.

Sir Lindsay split an off hind pastern in a race yesterday and for a time it was feared he might never race again.

"A suspensory ligament and joint of the off hind leg are gone," Anthony said. "He will be scratched from the Grand National. I do not want to say he will never run again, as the injury may yield to treatment."

Las Du Bonnet, Man. Feb. 13 (AP)—Finding of the body of Gus Shumway, 16, who with his chum, Tony Smak, had been lost in the blinding blizzard and intense cold since last Thursday, brought in a total of four deaths taken by the storm which swept western Canada.

Gus and Tony had wandered from the camp where their fathers were cutting wood and were overtaken by a blizzard.

MILLS TO DRAFT SALES TAX BILL FOR HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 13 (U.S.)—Secretary of the Treasury Mills will present a bill providing for a manufacturer's sales tax to the House ways and means subcommittee studying this form of taxation for inclusion in the revenue bill.

At a meeting of the subcommittee, Mills was requested to furnish a draft of a sales tax bill. He will present the draft tomorrow.

So far the Treasury has not recommended a general manufacturer's sales tax, but Mills told the committee such a tax was practicable and suggested a selected sales tax as a supplement to higher rates on additional forms of revenue.

Rep. Hainey (D.), Illinois, chairman of the subcommittee, estimated the bill would raise approximately $200,000,000 toward the $2,400,000,000 needed to balance the budget.

Other taxes would raise another half-billion dollars, thus leaving $200,000,000 to be met by levies on oil, gasoline, natural gas and electric consumption, Hainey said.

An advocate of sweeping taxes, Hainey is expected to recommend a levy on practically every manufactured article except seeds and fertilizers. Even farm equipment and machinery would be taxed under the Hainey program.

Fishy Tasting Water Not Harmful to Drinkers

The "fishy" taste in the water in Malden, Medford, Melrose and Everett, which has been noticeable in the four cities the last week, has been explained by William H. Ross, chief engineer of the metropolitan district commission water division, who announced that the water can do nothing to harm.

In a letter to the Malden health authorities from after the "fishy" taste is due to the growth of Utricularia in the Spot Pond water reservoir.

BANK RATE CUT 1 P.C. IN LONDON

London, Feb. 18 (AP)—The Bank of England extended a helping hand to the commercial community and a financial gesture of confidence to the world today by reducing the bank rate 5 to 6 per cent.

The 6 per cent rate was imposed in September, when the country went off the gold standard. The bank rate in Sweden and Norway has been reduced from 6 per cent to 5 1/2 per cent.

It is very unusual for the authorities to lower the official minimum by 1 per cent, but with trade slowly recovering and with the advantages derived from the depreciated pound sterling they decided to give commerce and trade a further fillip and they expected the reduction would assist export industries.

Today, in the real estate column of the Financial Advertiser, will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

It Was 'Help! Help!' When Mouse Went Up Trousers

Hammond, Ind., Feb. 18 (AP)—"Help!" yelled Policeman Roy McCutcheon.

Hammond residents living near the poor relief commissary, where McCutcheon was on duty, couldn't refuse to listen to a cry like that, so they, too, shouted for aid.

The rescue came. They laid McCutcheon on his back, and sat on him. Then they turned him over and sat on this other side.

Having done this they pulled out a dead mouse, which during its happier moments had chosen to run up the inside of McCutcheon's trouser leg in preference to any nearby clock.

BATTLE PERILS U. S. LEGATION

Panama City, Feb. 18 (AP)—The Costa Rican government ordered the abandonment of the American legation at San Jose, just across the street from the Bellavista barracks, stronghold of a force of rebels under Manuel Castro Quesada, dispatches from there said today.

The government feared injury to the legation staff from artillery fire directed against the barracks. The dispatches said the rebels had sacked several stores in the neighborhood of their stronghold.

The government prepared today to begin a general bombardment of the Bellavista barracks and all civilians were ordered to evacuate the city by 11 A. M.

Several rounds of artillery shells were fired into the barracks yesterday, but there was no general bombardment.

Boston Pastor Sings Hymn for John D. on Florida Golf Green

By JAMES KILGALLEN

Concord, N. H., Feb. 18 (AP)—Ormond Beach, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP)—John D. Rockefeller, at 92 years of age, still is a remarkably well-preserved man, but he does not look as physically strong as he did a year ago.

He seemed a little fatigued when he finished four holes of golf on the Ormond Beach course today. But when the International News Service reporter asked him how he felt, he said:

"My health is fine—never better."

His amber sun goggles gave him an owlish appearance. His tanned, furrowed cheeks seemed thinner. It was warm and he had removed his coat and was playing in a brown golf vest. He wore long gray trousers and a gray cap.

ASK FOR HYMN

Slowly he took his stance on the green. He was short on his approach putt. A foot from the hole, he missed his next putt and was down in three putts, but did not seem disturbed.

He was waiting for Mr. Rockefeller as he left the green. He sat down and turned to the Rev. Dr. Arthur H. Brooks of Boston, one of his companions, he said.

Dr. Brooks, won't you sing something? Won't you sing me a hymn?"

A crowd of perhaps 40 persons had assembled, most of them tourists. In the group were half a dozen negro caddies, in green sweaters and green caps. They waited.

KEEP POWDER DRY, HE SAYS

Dr. Brooks stood on a hill, at the edge of the green, and in a clear resonant voice that could be heard two fathoms away, sang "God Will Take Care of You."

When he finished, Mr. Rockefeller said:

"Bless you, Dr. Brooks. We thank you."

Rising from his chair, Mr. Rockefeller raised his right hand rather dramatically and, addressing the knot of people standing in respectful silence, said:

"We must all keep our powder dry."

This cryptic statement puzzled his listeners and as the International News Service reporter shook hands with Mr. Rockefeller later he asked him what he meant by the admission that we must keep our powder dry.

FINANCES DR. BROOKS

"Go back and read your history, young man," said Mr. Rockefeller, with a smile.

He made his way to his automobile, parked at the roadway known as Neptune ave, which cuts through the golf course at the eighth hole. His guards surrounded him to prevent anybody from annoying him.

He sat in the back seat with Dr. Brooks. As Dr. Brooks was explaining to the reporter that he is pastor of the Dudley St. Baptist Church in Boston, Mr. Rockefeller interjected:

"And his church has taken in over 2000 members in the last year."

Mr. Rockefeller's golfing party was comprised of J. P. White of Cleveland and his daughter, Betty; W. T. Sheppard, Lowell, Mass.; the Rev. George Owen or Ormond and N. E. Perkins of Williamsburg, Ky., and Ormond.

Brother of Hattie, the Senator, Too Wet

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 18 (AP)—A brother of U. S. Senator Hattie W. Caraway of Arkansas, Walter E. Wyatt, has been ordered to appear before a United States commissioner for preliminary hearing on a charge of violating the national prohibition law.

United States Deputy Marshal S. F. Anderson of Nashville arrested Wyatt at his home near McEwen, Tenn.

The deputy marshal said a large still was discovered on Wyatt's farm.

AID POURED OUT TO SMALL BANKS

Washington, Feb. 18 (AP)—Millions on millions of dollars have been poured into the American business structure during the past two weeks by the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

Quietly, day and night, the huge credit organization has devoted its attention to small banks. These institutions, which might have been forced to close their doors had not credit been extended, have resumed their normal functions, according to reports reaching the corporation.

The total already distributed is estimated at more than $100,000,000, exclusive of the $50,000,000 turned over to the Department of Agriculture.

Sizeable loans also have gone to two hard-pressed railroads, the Wabash, already in the hands of a receiver, and the Missouri Pacific. Corporation headquarters still is being besieged by applicants for jobs. Those who have been hired find life no bed of roses. Most of them work from 9 in the morning until midnight. Some work even later.

MAYOR, CHIEF, 9 INDICTED

Pitts., Mich., Feb. 18 (AP)—Free on $2000 bond each Mayor William McKeighan, Police Chief Caesar J. Scavarda, who is also acting city manager, four policemen, one policeman's wife, and four of their alleged accomplices today await trial on federal charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

The eleven persons were indicted by the federal grand jury and were arraigned before Judge Tuttle at Bay City last night. Two other men named in indictments are being sought.

Mayor McKeighan whose four terms of office have been full of political battles, said the charges were the result of his determination to seek the Republican nomination for Governor. Scavarda also denounced the indictments, which followed investigations by federal agents since last August.

The four policemen indicted are former members of the vice squad.

FLOYD QUILTS "MIKE" FOR ANOTHER WAR

Floyd Gibbons, famous war correspondent now covering the Shanghai situation for the Boston Evening American, is shown as he appeared preparing his script for the radio broadcasts which gained great popularity. Kenneth W. MacGregor, who assisted Floyd, is also shown. Floyd quit broadcasting to him over to Manchuria as correspondent for Universal and International News-Services. When things quieted down, he followed a hunch and went to Shanghai, arriving just in time for the big trouble.

FLOYD GIBBONS' LIFE OF HEADLINE THRILLS

Editor's Note:—Following is the seventh and final chapter of a series of stories giving the "high light" of the colorful and interesting career of Floyd Gibbons, now "covering" the Sino-Japanese situation at Shanghai for clients of International News-Services. The series was written by Henry Wales, himself a famous war correspondent and a "buddy" of Gibbons for a great many years. Read the concluding chapter!

By HENRY WALES
CHAPTER VII

Floyd Gibbons soared to a record altitude when he went on the air. His "headline" radio broadcast scored an overnight hit. His talks were broadcast nationally. With the globe as a background, possessing first hand knowledge of nearly every country and people on earth, with his war experience and his long list of exploits since the armistice, Gibbons had everything the public wanted.

Added to that he had a personality which climbed right into the microphone, zipped out of the sending stations and permeated into the listening-sets of millions of radio fans. His voice was ideal, clear, ringing, peppy.

His delivery was the fastest that has ever been heard on the air. He had been clocked at the rate of 247 words a minute without losing clarity or expression.

Call to Arms
And He Speeds to Seat of Trouble

The average speed is about 200 words a minute. This is 50 faster than the speediest of his competitors attempt to go. He broadcast the arrival of the German Zeppelin at Lakehurst in her first trip with passengers with a "boom" "boom" giving startling descriptions of the scene.

Gibbons has mail immediately began to swamp him. He hired a corps of secretaries and stenographers to handle it. Offers came from his big national advertisers, asking him to make films of his experiences. Then he went into the movies. He did a series of films of his experiences—Gen. Pershing, New York; Gen. Harbord, England. He had a dozen others lined up for the screen. About that time trouble started in Manchuria. The veteran war hero (although he is just past 40) snatched his powder. He was rarin' to go.

International News-Services contracted for Gibbons' services in the Far East and he dropped the radio, the pictures, magazine articles and books he had under way, to dash for the scene of action.

He sprinted across the continent, caught the first boat at Seattle. Will Rogers was aboard on a trip around the world.

They crossed the Pacific and after a stop of only a few hours in Tokyo, to meet Japanese government officials, Gibbons continued by airplane to Manchuria.

Thrills World
Vivid Pictures of War in Thrilling Words

The first experienced war correspondent on the scene, he began at once to score reports and beats over the radio. Through the facilities placed at his disposition by Gen. Harbord and the Japanese general staff he visited all parts of the province where action was taking place. For a time he left the Japanese and established himself with the Chinese, both the regulars and the irregulars. He commented the leading "white Russians" exiles from the Soviet union, but warning an opportunity to join any movement which might eventually shake the hold of the Bolsheviks on their country.

With the Manchurian situation stabilized after the Japanese had overrun practically all the territory, Gibbons had a hunch to go to Shanghai. His intuition proved correct. The Japanese left only a few hours. He was present when the first Japanese airplane started its bombing operations against Shanghai.

His dispatches from Shanghai have electrified the country. In crisp, snappy, descriptive language, like a machine gun, Gibbons has captured the situation there, the apprehension of the International Red Cross, the flight of foreign civilians are congregated, congested with Chinese refugees seeking a haven from the rain of explosives from the heavens.

Heavy fighting by infantry and artillery against the Chinese positions, and the defensive desperate defense to hold back the Japanese. Gibbons has been a one-man job. He has held the line and won. He has told of the horrors to the civilian population, and the cruelties and suffering which the ruthless exactions of warfare entail.

And he has sought after American interests and told how they were grievously damaged or jeopardized in the military operations. Journalistically speaking, Gibbons has been a one-man job. He has held the line and won. He has told of the horrors to the civilian population, and the cruelties and suffering which the ruthless exactions of warfare entail.

THE END

Sniper Falls in Fifth Shooting

Washington, Feb. 14 (AP)—Striking again, the capital's phantom sniper who within two weeks shot and killed the first and wounded three others last night again scored a victim.

J. E. Remmer, a clerk in the navy department, was first at twice but the bullets whistled by his ears. After the shooting, Remmer saw a black automobile speed away.

FOUR ON TRIAL IN RUM SEIZURE

John Bruno, Robert Taylor, Joseph Piazza and Theodore Cuccia, all of Boston, who were arrested last December in connection with the seizure of 200 cases of imported rum, are on trial today in Federal court in Boston.

The four defendants are charged with conspiracy to import and concealment of the seized liquor.

Their defense attorneys, Dennis F. Driscoll, Leon W. Varnum and Charles J. Fitzgerald, have been permitted to enter the case as a result of a ruling by Judge James Lowell in U. S. District Court charged with facilitating the transportation and concealment of the seized liquor.

BERLIN OFFERS AIR WAR BAN

By ALNO BOSCH-ELEKTROT International News Service Staff

Geneva, Feb. 14 (AP)—Rejecting the draft convention of the disarmament preparatory committee because of "omissions and defects," Germany today presented its proposals to the disarmament conference, advocating widespread reductions of arms of all types.

A striking feature is a demand for abolition of all military aircraft and destruction of all existing aircraft before the fourteenth day after seizure upon them.

Germany bitterly attack the Versailles treaty and provisions limiting Germany's arms, while allowing larger forces to be maintained by other powers.

BRITAIN WARNS BOTH JAPAN AND CHINA

London, Feb. 14 (AP)—Sir Miles Lampson, minister to China, has handed a note to the Chinese government, announcing that Great Britain would hold both sides responsible for the loss of life and property in the Shanghai hostilities, the Foreign Office announced today.

The note was delivered after the death of two British sailors, who were wounded presumably by Chinese shells.

WILL DEMAND INDEMNITY
Sir Miles urged upon the Chinese government, that strict instructions be issued to Chinese troops to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's incident.

It is learned Great Britain intends to demand an indemnity for the killing of the two sailors.

The Sino-Japanese imbroglio will reach a crisis this week-end, it was predicted today to International News Service, which is head of one of the most important diplomatic missions here. He said:

JAP ELECTION SATURDAY.
"I base my conclusions on the fact that the Japanese special elections will be held Saturday and the outcome will determine Japan's immediate policy toward China and that of the nations."

"If the Seiyukai party, now in power, is given a working majority in the Diet, it will be interpreted as a national endorsement of its present policy which will be pursued. If the Minseito party wins it will be a repudiation of the present policy and we may expect a rapid volte face and conciliatory action."

Giant Rockets in Five Years Will Cross Ocean, He Says

New York, Feb. 14 (AP)—A seven-foot aluminum rocket which the American Interplanetary Society announced today would be launched before the fourteenth day of a month, and then be waited gently back to earth by parachute, will be on display at the Museum of Natural History.

A wire received last night from police headquarters in New York City stated that the two Patrick Smiths in the police department had never heard of Carney.

THEY FACED DEATH THAT JAPS MIGHT RULE MANCHURIA

Japanese troops seriously wounded in the Manchurian campaign and sent home are shown on stretchers in railroad station at Tokio. They were removed to hospitals for treatment.

$42,000 DRAWS MANY TO HIM

With visions of $42,000 floating before their eyes, a horde of alleged relatives and blood-chums congregated at the New York City station to greet James Carney, who is being sent home.

A good percentage of the anxious throng also found their way to 18 Union Park, South End, to see Mrs. Carney, who is being sent home.

A wire received last night from police headquarters in New York City stated that the two Patrick Smiths in the police department had never heard of Carney.

Malden Police Split on Identity of Furry Fugitive

Mink market or just common alley—that is the question threatening to split friendships in the Malden police department.

Patrolman King and McCallan, on duty on Highland ave., saw something run across the street. They gave chase. Then they reported to their superior that they had chased a mink.

"There was only a mink," declared Capt. John H. Alford, "and it was not a mink running wild in Malden. The wildcat are the far cost ones."

"Not even a mink," declared Alexander Lippa, 47, his wife Rachel, 45, their two sons, Joseph 14, and George, 14, and Irving Shulman, 25, were the occupants of the second floor who were taken down ladders.

18 STUDENTS OUSTED

Setting a record for wholesale dismissal of students, Principal Frederick R. Willard of Lynn English high school, today dropped 18 students including post-graduates, seniors and juniors, because of non-marriage.

Willard denied the withdrawals were an economy move. He declared that, due to unemployment, there is a larger registration of pupils and a corresponding increase in unsatisfactory studies.

Secretary Ernest Stevens, however, took another view of the situation. He said that it costs $128 to keep a student in high school and that weeding out poor scholars is wise at this time.

FIRE ROUTS 10 IN LYNN

Ten persons were driven out by fire, six being assisted out in the Malden police department.

The fire was discovered by Isaac Miller, 35, who occupies the first floor. He shouted out the window and a passing milkman turned in an alarm. Miller then assisted his wife, Fannie, 45; John and Ed Miller, twins, 24, and Mollie Miller, 14, to the street.

Alexander Lippa, 47, his wife Rachel, 45, their two sons, Joseph 14, and George, 14, and Irving Shulman, 25, were the occupants of the second floor who were taken down ladders.

ANTI-BONDING BONDS SMALL, SAYS KNOX

Washington, Feb. 18 (AP)—Plans for a government bond selling campaign to decrease bonding—announced after the first Liberty Loan drives—were announced today by Col. Frank Knox, chairman of President Hoover's anti-bonding commission.

The securities to be issued by the treasury, designed specifically to draw money out of treasuries and safety deposit boxes, Knox said, will be in low denominations.

Details remain to be worked out at a conference with Secretary Miller of the Treasury.

"It anticipates only one difficulty," Knox said, "it is in getting a sufficient quantity of securities from the Treasury to satisfy the demand for them."

Knox conferred with the President immediately before making his announcement.

He reiterated that the campaign to return $2,000,000,000 in circulation would be "short and quick." The real work of his committee, titled the Citizens' Reconstruction Organization, he said might well be wound up during the first week in March.

Steps to prove that May Glodich, Canadian ski girl, and not Mrs. Inez Noah Conner, former Maiden society girl, is the lawful wife of William E. Conner, Tech graduate and engineer, have progressed to a strange domestic tangle that started Long Island last fall, it was learned here today.

Private investigators from a Boston firm are in Montreal today engaged on a secret mission. Yesterday they conferred for several hours with Conner, who is serving a five-year term for forgery in Vermont state prison, and last night left Montreal for the Canadian city.

The agency operatives, a man and a woman, refused to discuss their business with Conner and federal and state authorities were also urged to maintain silence in the case. It was learned on good authority, however, that their efforts were being devoted to substantiating Conner's claims that he was lawfully married to the ski girl in Canada, two years before their child was born.

Conner hopes to be released from prison next June. He plans to make his home in Canada after his release, and insists his legal wife and child will join him in Montreal.

5-MILE HOLE IN CARIBBEAN

Washington, Feb. 18 (AP)—A new great depth in the Caribbean Sea, 24,000 feet, has been discovered.

The new depth, 4,000 fathoms or nearly five miles, greater over measured in that region, has been located almost on the spot where the Santiago earthquake centered. The navy announced today its discovery by the submarine S-4, which is cruising in the Caribbean with a crew of scientists studying the causes of quakes and other earth changes.

The new deep sounding was made in the "Bartlett Deep," huge ocean trough to the south of Cuba. The greatest previous sounding there was 3770 fathoms, or 22,520 feet.

DINKY LITTLE HATS, BUT, MY, SO CHIC! Spring Styles Seen at N. Y. Show Are Smaller Than Ever

Your grandmother would blush to own the hat you are going to wear this Spring—such a skimpy little thing it is.

But there's no help for you. Every hat shown at the Fashion Promenade at the Retail Millinery Association at the Waldorf Astoria in New York is designed to cover about one-third of the head. And what the Fashion Promenade sponsors, stores throughout the country will adopt.

Do you simply will have to submit. You will learn to anchor your tiny little hat firmly over one ear and commend the rest of your head and the other ear to the mercy of the breeze.

But once you get used to the new hats you will like them. They are cozy, young-looking and gaily colored.

Proving that madonnism would be well dressed she must start at the top and work down. Kathryn Crawford, film actress, offers this trio of dashing millinery models for the new spring season.

Miss Crawford dropped in at the show to look things over a la headgear. The shiny, youth Italian straw (No. 1 in the pictures) is of a new design, a wide brim with a feather quill of tan with brown polka dots. The feather is rarely visible because it is placed at the back of the hat.

The Frodo hat (No. 2 in pictures) is of dull crystalline straw, the pliable material lending itself to the tam shape, two pom-poms of ostrich, one green and one white. Both are placed over the right eye.

No. 3 in the pictures shows you the big fashion "tip" of the season on a rough, shiny "Raffia" straw. The hat is considerably on one side and is trimmed with black and white striped ribbon around and over the crown, ending in a bow on the left side.

Dresses, following the lead of hats. They were simple, young, brightly colored—feminine still, as they were last year, but somewhat straighter and slimmer of line.

Lots of the models had a sailor-like flavor with red, white and blue coloring. The tri-color is an echo of the Washington Bicentennial models which were so popular in late winter styles.

A brown woven skirt had an extra-high waistline and it looked stunning with a soft wool orange sweater. The Directorate high waist influence is seen in all models.

Mr. Zero Candidate for Vice-President

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—Winning on a combination of political and prohibition reasons, Leodore James "Zero" in his work among today announced his candidacy for Vice-President of the United States. Leodore's theory is that the unemployed and underemployed will be swept by a landslide.

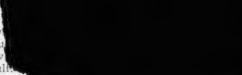

Voices of despair where hope held yesterday were raised by civic and municipal leaders and representatives were planned that may plunge many workers into the ranks of the jobless and curtail the functions supported by the public treasury.

The city had based its hopes of financial relief on legislative enactments permitting the funding of unpaid back taxes by bond issue. But the special session of the Illinois General Assembly adjourned last night until April 19—after the primary election—without acting.

"Yet since the Chicago fire has the city been confronted with such a disastrous situation as today," said Mayor Anton Cermak. "We are the victims of politicians who have placed their self interests above the acute need of the people."

Emile Zola's Tale Bought by Universal as Tala Birrel's Next Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Mission Heights, 1401, for Universal service. For Los Angeles, Feb. 14.—The latest book Emile Zola has ever written is "Nana." It is also one of the classics of modern French literature.
It is treated just as much just in France as France's "Madame Bovary." Both authors considered the essence of immorality. Yet today
I thought if either one could be put in italics, certainly not each must be put down as a splendid example of writing.

Universal has purchased Zola's "Nana," for Tala Bregel. That proves positively that Miss Bregel, will be given every encouragement to become another Garbo or Dietrich.

Campanini had intended to give Marie-
Louise, in "Nana" and then, for some reason, the names were changed.

600 MILLION IN TAXES FROM BEER SEEN

Washington, Feb. 12 (U.S.)—A bill designed to produce $600,000,000 in revenue for the federal government was tentatively agreed upon by a subcommittee of the House transportation committee today.

A copy of the bill, which has been held up since its introduction in the Senate, is now in the hands of the subcommittee.

Through a tax of five cents a quart on four per cent beer, the bill would raise $600,000,000 a year, with other taxes on beer, including a tax on the manufacture of beer, and a tax on the sale of beer.

The bill is now in the hands of the subcommittee, and is expected to be reported to the House in the near future.

Any memoirs or reminiscences of the generation that preceded hers are, of course, even, of Edwin Booth, are made use to contain references to Minnie and her. She plays child parts; she sang Ralph Rackstraw in Hootley's juvenile Pinocchio company. Presently she

ROBERT E. ROGERS is one of the best known of American authors, having written a number of successful stage plays of the period, such as "The Captive" and "Pigeon Ferry." After her marriage to Harrison Gray Fiske, she became at once a powerful emotional actress, in Fiske's importations, such as "From Paris and Dyonessa," and the German "Mazda." Her husband, too, emotional, has written a number of plays, including "The Bon of Hara," a novel, "The Eyes of the Diabolicals," and Perhaps her finest period was that in which she headed the Manhattan Company from 1904 to 1909. There, associated with John Mason and George Arliss, she did the best work of her career in "Leah Kleschna," "The New York Idea," "Ramsersholm," and her greatest success, "Becky Sharp," from Thackeray's "Vanity Fair." After that, Mrs. Fiske was recognized as the most intellectual woman player of high comedy on the American stage.

Mannequins grew on her, as they grow on so many Americans. actors and actresses. One of the best verses F. P. A. Franklin Adams ever wrote, described her in her prime

*Staccato, nervous, hurried, brisk,
Ascending, intermittent, choppy,
The brittle voice of Mrs. Fiske
Shall serve me now as copy.*²

F. P. A.'s adjectives are marvellously exact and definitive

She went in for quiet naturalism at a time when the new manner was still a novelty. She could sit or stand for long minutes without a movement. She could play an act in a rocking chair. She had an exasperating habit of playing with her back to the audience, and people complained that she could not be heard back of the fifth row. But she gave, as almost no other woman on the stage gave it, the impression of thinking her way through any part, of knowing what it was all about. You could SEE her thinking her lines!

Mrs. Fiske was one of the earliest women to play Ibsen, and to play him, not emotionally in the old manner, but in the new. Her Nora in "The Doll's House," her "Hedda Gabler," with Arliss as Judge Brack, and Rebecca West with Arliss as Ulric Brendel, were memorable creations. Later, when she tried Mrs. Alving's "Ghosts," she is said to have raised laughter among the vulgar by playing the part in a spirit of acid comedy instead of as gloomy tragedy.

Her "Salvation Nell," which popularized Edward Sheldon as an emotional dramatist and Holbrook Blinn as a powerful actor, was superbly presented, but later in another piece by Sheldon, "The High Road," she disappointed her admirers by trying to play a young girl of 18 in the prologue. She saw the error of her ways after that and confined herself to comic pieces for women of middle age.

I think her best part of latter days was that in "Erstwhile Susan," where she played a middle-aged, retired teacher of elocution, with scraps of the old drama always on her lips. Susan finds herself the wife of a dour, stern Pennsylvania Dutch farmer and reforms him. One remembers the scene in which Susan puts his whip, used for punishing his children, into the stove with the crisp comment, "'Tis a custom more honored in the breach than in the the classic climber with a vulgar past in "Mrs. Rumpelstiltsch," "Miss Nelly of New Orleans" and the heroine of "Ladies of the Jury" (now being played in the films by Edna May Oliver) were also notable characterizations.

It was not until she came back to touring her own plays or appearing in all-star casts of the Classics. The younger generation in this way had a chance to see Becky Sharp and Mrs. Rumpelstiltsch, but to judge her most effective assumption of a role was in "The School for Scandal." In that play she also revived the glories of the grand manner of classic comedy, as played by old Mrs. Siddons. She sailed through her part with flourishes ballooning ahead-ends towering, and fan flapping, as she boomed forth her immortal lines in a voice that—for this time at least—reached the Minnie Madeo, on Piaske was an old trooper in the best and most exact sense of the word. She played as long as she was physically capable of playing, just as long years before she had played as soon as she was able to speak lines. She was of the generation that had played in mining camps and tents and town halls all over our country. She claimed to have visited every city in the United States. She saw the old American theater home ruined by the all-powerful syndicates of vulgar and commercial managers, and she fought those syndicates as long as she was financially able. Even after she was beaten she remained in spirit an independent, who tried to keep alive the spirit of the old theater and the old trooper.

Her effectiveness as an actress was largely dependent on whether the play suited her or not. But as a director she was indefatigable; her productions were always perfectly done. She was not beautiful; her speaking voice was not one of exceptional range or beauty. Her chief power was the power of getting emotion over the footlights by intellectual means. For that side of her, her quick mind and her brilliant conversation, you will find excellent tracing in Alexander Weir's Little Sister's dial.

COLD INSURANCE

He carries it with him, ready for just such a time. That little box of Bayer Aspirin. If he catches cold, what of it? Bayer Aspirin will stop it. If his throat feels sore, he will end the soreness with one good gargle made by crushing those tablets in water. Nothing is easier than the relief of colds with Bayer Aspirin—but don't postpone it. Dangerous complications can follow the neglect of "a common cold." Every case of tonsillitis began with "just a sore throat." It's a wise plan to take aspirin after any undue exposure to bad weather, or whenever there is any chance that you've caught cold. If it's genuine aspirin it can't possibly hurt you; and how it does banish the aches and pains caused by colds, neuritis, neuritis, rheumatism, lumbago! Bayer Aspirin will insure your comfort through the worst cold season. The more susceptible you are to colds, the more you need it. Tablets that bear the Bayer cross are perfectly harmless. You can buy them in handy pocket flasks, or economical bottles of 100. You don't want the imitations at any price; safety is worth something!

Special Design Adopted for Washington Posters

A special design for posters, advertising matter, programs and stickers has been adopted by the Congressional Committee for the George Washington Bicentennial, and will be used for the first time in connection with the free, public memorial exercises at Symphony Hall, Sunday evening.

WASHINGTON IN BOSTON

The design bears the lines, "Washington in Boston, 1756, 1775 and 1789." A small circle contains the city seal. Larger circles reproduce the only gold medal awarded to Washington by Congress, having been voted by the Continental Congress for his success in forcing the British out of Boston.

GEORGE WASHINGTON BICENTENNIAL DESIGN

The medal was struck at the French mint with the aid of Gen. Lafayette, and it is now the property of the city of Boston and preserved at the public library.

Japs' Actions Write Finis to the League

Can any one doubt that there is a war in progress between Japan and China? The day's dispatches read precisely like the bulletins from the western front during the late war in Europe. It is stated that the invader, Japan, has 25,000 troops already at the scene of action and is waiting reinforcements, which are expected soon. Checked in her initial thrust, she is organizing for a renewed attack in greater strength, upon the defended positions. Any moment may bring news that "the big push is on."

China, whose soldiers have surprised not only Japan but the world by the courage and tenacity of their resistance, is "bringing up her reserves."

The loss of life and the destruction of property which have already occurred are on a scale known only to war. And yet JAPAN STILL DISAVOWS THAT SHE IS WAGING WAR. She is coerced into this pretense by the embarrasments arising from her membership in the League of Nations and her signature of the Kellogg Briand Pact.

By virtue of the pact, she is pledged to refrain from AGGRESSIVE war; according to the latter, she has ABOLISHED, for all time, WAR AS A NATIONAL INSTRUMENT.

China, with a better show of reason, and in order not to impair her right of appeal to the League of Nations for aid, denies that she is at war, claiming that she is only repelling, by necessary force, a foreign invasion.

China is probably the last country in the world to retain belief in the efficacy of the League of Nations as an instrument of peace or as a source of protection.

The action of Japan has written FINIS to the League of Nations. It has shown to the world, with the brute candor of undeniable reality, that covenants and treaties are not sources of security to nations.

Preparedness—disciplined strength—is the sole reliance of a nation called upon to withstand aggressive force. THE NATION WHICH LEANS UPON "THE ORGANIZATION OF WORLD PEACE" IS LEANING UPON A BROKEN REED.

THERE ARE NONE SO BLIND AS THEY WHO WILL NOT SEE.

LET IT NOT BE SAID THAT WE ARE OF THAT NUMBER.

'1,000,000 Jobs in 30 Days' While the Government Talks, the Legion Acts

What the Administration at Washington has steadily refused to do, the American Legion now sets out to do.

Jobs for one million jobs within thirty days—this is the goal of the Legion's drive.

The Legion has been reinforced by the American Federation of Labor. It has formed job-getting committees in 8000 cities and towns. These committees will direct the activities of 10,000 Legion posts and 20,000 local labor unions.

Ten thousand jobs have been obtained already.

With the co-operation of the public, the Legion will achieve the mark it has set for itself.

None can doubt that.

The Legion's smashing offensive against unemployment is in striking contrast to the Administration's policy of doing nothing.

It deserves the unstinted support of every patriotic American. It will help—help a great deal—toward the return of better times.

However, even if a million new jobs are filled, there will remain at least six million workers WITHOUT jobs.

Private initiative cannot give those men the employment they seek.

The only agency that can find employment for them—directly or indirectly—is the Federal Government.

It can do this in two ways.

Either way would make a tremendous dent in the unemployment problem.

The two combined would END the problem.

One remedy would be to repeal the prohibition laws and legalize light wines and beer. This measure would put many to work in the brewing and allied industries, and provide a billion dollars in new revenue which must now be provided by taxing individuals and business.

It is the logical cure for the country's worst ills, but needless to say, it will NOT be adopted by the Government as at present constituted.

The other remedy is a five billion dollar prosperity bond issue to be used immediately in the construction of public works.

Such a measure would put millions of men to work on roads, bridges, schoolhouses, public buildings and river and harbor improvements, with more millions busy providing materials in factories, quarries, mines and steel mills.

This remedy could be adopted by the Government as at present constituted.

It would take care of the men that the Legion's drive, no matter how successful, will not reach.

It would end hoarding, and fear, and PUT THE COUNTRY ON ITS FEET.

Old Glory to the Breeze

Everybody in Boston should be preparing now to celebrate the opening of the Bicentennial year, on February 22. Every family should feel itself to be a part of this great national observance of one of the most momentous dates in the annals of mankind.

The family is the recognized unit of society, whether that family consists of parents and children, or a lone bachelor, or a bachelor girl, holding forth in a single room.

Every family, on the two hundredth anniversary of Washington's birthday, should fling Old Glory to the breeze.

Let every place of business and residence blaze with the national colors. Let the flag fly from every flagpole, from every roof top, from the windows of every house and every apartment in the city.

In the birth of Washington we see typified today the birth of the Republic and of the sturdy banner which is its inspiring symbol. Every man, woman and child should feel a personal interest in the historic anniversary now so close at hand.

Get your flag now! Don't wait until Washington's birthday dawns. Put your pole out, over the front door, in the front garden, on your house-top. And have your own flag.

Don't wait for others to celebrate this anniversary for you. Celebrate it yourself!

McIntyre New York Day by Day

Cohan a "Lone Wolf"

New York, Feb. 18.—George M. Cohan is becoming a less familiar figure in the passing Rialto parade. When I came to town he was seen daily among luncheon crowds in the Astor's Hunting Room or leaning on his bamboo cane in animated discussion on a Times Square corner.

Today he is seen more often strolling the related path circling the Central Park reservoir and within easy distance of the Savoy Plaza where he lives. While a member of both the Lambs and the Friars, his sentimental attachment seems more pronounced for the Friars.

Perhaps because he is the Friars' Abbott. Too, there may be twinges of the old wound inflicted when he broke with the Lambs during the actors' strike. Yet wherever Cohan appears, he is the jocular and jaded figure of the theater's Golden Age.

Two of his closest companions—Bobbie, Cohan's Broadway wife, and Steve Keaton, former police—were with him at the Friars' meeting last night. On the increasingly rare occasions when Cohan decides to see the town by daylight, he is the only person who had his entire confidence. Cohan, socially, has always been much of a lone wolf.

His other pal is Hag Ward, of the old burlesque duo of Ward and Vokes. Reardon and Ward, along with the late, bright-colored Eddie Dunn, Cohan's business manager, have been the only persons who had his entire confidence. Cohan, socially, has always been much of a lone wolf.

He said once: "I'm Mick enough to cling to a few superstitions." One of these is to wear a faded old green silk dressing gown on every opening night. Lately the most intimate of professional cronies is William Collier, now transplanted to Hollywood, although they usually indulge in a sea-saw of sarcasm.

Flashes of open-couraged generosity to old-timers in discard is a fruit of Cohan's character. "Elegant Carriages of the Best Class—Superior Service," is the sign on his "private pay roll" is reputed to be the biggest along the Rialto. Yet he pushes aside in a hard-boiled mug, he clips out of the side of his mouth. But Broadway winks!

Only 16 horse-drawn public rigs remain in the beautiful cascade of midtown walking traffic. Graying with age, the old-fashioned cabs are seen so seldom that to hire them for a spin in the park takes on the frolicsome of a lot.

In today's mail came a yellowed copy of an ad, reminiscent of carriage factories of Brewster and Plandine heralds. "Elegant Carriages of the Best Class—Superior Service," is the sign on his "private pay roll" is reputed to be the biggest along the Rialto. Yet he pushes aside in a hard-boiled mug, he clips out of the side of his mouth. But Broadway winks!

A strip of the Harlem bad lands is known as "Blood Fields." Here on festive occasions the razor flourish. The hon ton section of the town that elevated section of Edgemoor avenue called "Sugar Hill." I always thought the most picturesque named Negro section of Manhattan. I believe—"Bant Flat."

Lon Holz tells of the Scot who carelessly crashed into a car driven by a Hebrew. The latter was hurled to the road, moaning, with both legs broken, a bleeding head and a wrecked car. The Scotsman rushed to him, pulled out a flask and made him take a long swig, then another and told him to remain quiet while he went for a doctor. Just then a policeman came up. He asked the Scotsman, and pointing to the Hebrew, continued: "All I ask for you to smelt his breath."

Out of a thick morning fog on Fifth avenue a blurry limousine in front of Cartier's developed a melting scene that dreamed apart like successive scenes in a stage transformation. What first appeared to be the outline of a man stepped from the car. But crossing the sidewalk into the glare of store lights proved to be an actress—Fifi O'Driscay, if eyes did not trick me—a dark figure suit cut like a man's tuxedo and sporting a white moire vest and jade-tipped finger rings.

From S. D. Sedalia, Mass.: "I take it you belong to me, get which always get the neck of the chicken on company come."

Janet Complains

I'm tired of being nine years old
And always doing as I'm told;
I'm tired of saying what I should;
Tired of remembering to be good;
And tired of being fit to see,
Dressed up in things picked out for me.

I'm sure it must be nice to come and go
And never hear the cry "No!" to
Or sit at table, when they Pass spinach greens, look up and say,
"No thank you," and not start a row
And have to eat them anyhow.

I'm tired of being sent to bed,
Of being washed and being fed,
Of being thoughtful and polite,
Of doing things exactly right.
I'm tired of hearing people scold;
I'm tired of being nine years old.

Listen, World! By Elsie Robinson

Homesick?

I'M HOMESICK! I'm so homesick I could howl, yelp, whine, roar, bleat, yawn, yelp and yelp like a flea-bitten pup.

Here I am, wandering around Washington, D. C., collecting the low-down on the Stars 'n' Stripes, getting all tangled up with brutal facts and blow-by-whistle—while just 3000 miles over the horizon, the white violets are blossoming in my back yard! And my new rose border, it's coming into bloom! And they're planting the vines in the west forty acres!

All that going on while I stay here! Oh, I want to go home! I WANT TO GO HOME! And what I think of my boss for keeping me here isn't fit to print. Particularly in his own paper!

Yes, I admit it's a nice town, and they're treating me grand. And it's my own fault that I'm here, for I wanted to do it. But what difference does that make? Seeing that things are your own fault doesn't make them any easier to bear.

The fact remains, that I'm homesick! All over. Like snowing-pains. Or hives.

And sometimes I'm thinking, stranger dear, that we're homesick for something more than some place here—

This grabby-glittery, hurrying-hubbub of a life—we scurry through it and call it home. But sometimes, in the midst of it all, the laughter and the shouting die away, and we catch ourselves listening for a song we never heard on earth—and reaching for a peace and searching for a light that never was on sea or land!

Those lost and lonely moments when we feel we're somehow strayed—

What are we homesick for then, my dear?

Homesick, perhaps, for God? (Copyright, 1932, for the Boston Evening American) they're saying, nor caring a darn.

Instead, I'll be listening to a meadow lark calling from the willows by the creek. And I'll be smelling the wild roses, hot and spicy, tumbling over the courtyard wall. Or seeing the deer slip down the lake at dawn—dappled, amber shadows through a coral haze—with the morning star floating low, like a great, white flower.

And while the big shot rumbles on and on, in a delirium of delight over his own voice, I'll feel a face and the call of a bird and the sight of a face we love true.

Homesick? Always. Deep in the heart of each one of us, the secret, white longing for a place that once we knew—

And sometimes I'm thinking, stranger dear, that we're homesick for something more than some place here—

This grabby-glittery, hurrying-hubbub of a life—we scurry through it and call it home. But sometimes, in the midst of it all, the laughter and the shouting die away, and we catch ourselves listening for a song we never heard on earth—and reaching for a peace and searching for a light that never was on sea or land!

Wise Words

Every person is responsible for all the good within the scope of his abilities, and for no more and none can tell whose sphere is the largest.

—Hamilton.

Dependence is a perpetual call upon humanity, and a greater incentive to tenderness and pity than any other motive whatsoever.

—Anderson.

Assuredly fortune rules all things; she rules to enrich or bury in oblivion everything from caprice rather than from well-regulated principle.

Music is the sound which one's own children make as they romp through the house. Noise is the sound which other people's children make under the same circumstances.

When Ridicule Is Nigh and Laughter Impends

By Bainbridge Colby

A veritable salvo of Administration apologies marked Lincoln's birthday.

Cabinet ministers, Senators, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, the Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General and no end of lesser figures seem to have been simultaneously struck by the likeness of President Hoover to the Great Emancipator.

The vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee declared that in Mr. Hoover was "the only towering leadership this world debate has developed."

Senator Watson, of Indiana, forecasting that the people will re-elect Mr. Hoover in 1932 as they did Lincoln in 1864, speaks of the "wisdom and celerity with which Mr. Hoover moved to stay the ravages of the market crash of 1929."

The Secretary of the Interior, Dr. Wilbur, impressed with the unfailing skill and acuteness of his Chief's action in such successive phases of the country's difficulties, lauds the unique, and peculiar "expertness" of Mr. Hoover in MEETING EVERY PROBLEM. "Our method of government," says he, "needs to recognize that EXPERTS are required if we are to successfully operate what we have constructed."

"The time is coming," said ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE NAVY Jahnecke—he doesn't say it has come—"when we, as a people, shall give thanks that the man in the White House during this troubled era was Herbert Hoover."

Mr. Phillips, the FOURTH ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL, in the address which he made, appealed to the people to "support the President's program loyally, when it is passed"—which the people will doubtless do when they find out what it is—"and we will soon be out of the woods." But he added, "he did not mean that 'we will be out of the woods tomorrow.'"

It is rather hazardous for any man to be projected into comparison with Lincoln—described by an English historian as "THE MOST BEAUTIFUL AND HEROIC CHARACTER WHO, IN RECENT TIMES, HAS EVER LED A NATION. THE ONLY BLAMELESS TYPE OF STATESMAN SINCE THE DAYS OF WASHINGTON."

The appointees of President Hoover who allow their gratitude to seep into their eyes, or this picture of success blurs in a dangerous position before the American people. Ridicule is nigh, and laughter is peering at the men in the road.

Who shall compare himself, or be compared to Lincoln—the man who set "a nobler standard of human stature before the world?"

The forces behind the Hoover Administration Lincoln would have readily identified with the powers of reaction, privilege and high-placed influence, against which the struggle of his whole life was directed.

Mr. Watson and Dr. Wilbur, not to mention the Peases and the Lucases, will hardly be accepted as the spokesmen of that "spiritual life of the republic, which is still as it was when Lincoln loved it—the last, best hope of man."

The 'American Way' and Socialism

By Claude G. Bowers

WHENEVER any proposal is made for some sort of readjustment of the social and industrial system in the interest of a more equitable distribution of joint fruits of capital and labor, someone smugly says that really we must keep on in the "American way."

When someone speaks of some sort of employment insurance through the action of Government through the action of Government we hear that it is "not the American way for Government to inject itself into business."

From the politicians of the type that monopolized the memory of Lincoln the other day, we heard tributes to the President "because in the midst of the crisis he has held fast to the American ideals of individual responsibility and has refused to compromise with socialist cant."

Does it really mean that the Administration has not broken with traditional American methods?

That it has not put Government in business?

That it is not using the money of the Treasury for the benefit of individuals?

That, of course, is absurd. For it is doing that very thing. The relief measures for the benefit of banks, corporations, railroads have broken all precedent, deluged around the "American way," and made straight for a kind of socialism. Socialism, State capitalism—whatever the term, that is what we are getting—because there is a "depression."

Unemployment insurance—that's un-American, too.

From all of which we gather that the determination of the "socialism" of a relief measure rests on who gets the relief. If it's the banks, the railroads and corporations, it is scientific socialism. If it's the jobless, the starving and the poor, it's "socialism."

And that as clear as mud.
